

086 - Governor's Office of Indian Affairs

A001 Promote Government Relations

The Governor's Office of Indian Affairs assists the state in developing and implementing policies, as well as conducting its relations with federally-recognized tribes on a government-to-government basis, consistent with the principles identified and affirmed in the 1989 Centennial Accord, 1999 Millennium Agreement, and Governor's Proclamation of July 21, 1997. The office works to improve communication between the state of Washington and federally-recognized tribes and tribal organizations.
